Certificate Distribution Program by Economics Department

Economics department of Bappa Shree Narayan Vocational PG College (KKV), Lucknow had organized the Certificate Distribution Ceremony for the Six Month Course/ Training Program organized by Sarthak Foundation sponsored by Dell company by the name of SAFAL on 17th May 2023 after the successful completion of the course by the 177 girl students of the college. Sarthak Foundation is a well-known non-profit organization that has been working for the educational, emotional, and physical wellness of children living in urban and rural settlements for the past several years. The entire cost of this program was borne by Sarthak and Dell.

Professor Gunjan Pandey, Head of the Department of Economics, initiated this training program as the coordinator. The broad objective of the training program was to provide opportunities for skill development to girls in the age group of 18 to 21 years in light of emerging employment opportunities. The course content developed in this program was different from the normal classes. In this, the girl students were given computer knowledge, communication skills, interview skills interactively and last but not the least gender education. Necessary practical classes were conducted for them to gain confidence. This training program was a certificate course and all the participants were given their certificates. Principal Prof. Sanjay Mishra first addressed the students and explained how one can easily succeed in any competition by adjusting studies, entertainment, and sleep. Along with this, Dr. Umesh Singh while addressing the girl students said that only an economically self-sufficient girl can make her place in society, and stand confidently so the girls should insist on making
